ADDENDUM A (8/12/2010)

Post-placement/Registration Requirements

Russia

Pre-adoption:

Adoptive families are required to have a safety inspection of their home. Adoptive families are also required to purchase a car seat monitor and other child safety items that are recommended by EAC after placement.

Post-adoption:

Minimally, after completion of international adoption, Applicant(s) must:

- Provide EAC with monthly written parental post-placement reports and at least four (4) different photographs (frontal view) for each adopted child during the first year after completion of international adoption; and
- Provide EAC with written post-placement reports for each adopted child prepared by an agency licensed to conduct home studies in Applicant(s)' state of residence. Home visits by a licensed agency are mandatory and the reports must be completed and delivered to EAC early enough so that they can be submitted in Russia at six months, twelve months, twenty-four months and thirty-six months after completion of adoption. Two original reports for each child and for each home visit are required. Reports must be authenticated with proper documentation, and include one original set of at least four (4) different photographs (frontal view) of the adopted child with two color copies of photographs.
- Notify EAC immediately of any medical conditions or traumatic events effecting the health/welfare of child(ren) until they reach the age of majority.

On occasion, Russian authorities may request additional or special reports for a specific child. Upon notice from EAC and/or any Russian authority, Applicant(s) agree to comply with all such requests and provide all requested information in a timely fashion.

Registration:

Applicant(s) are required to provide EAC with properly authenticated verification of registration of each adopted child with proper Russian authorities, and unless, in EAC's sole discretion, other arrangements are made with EAC, Applicant(s) are required to remain in Russia until completion of the required registration of the child or children adopted. Applicant(s) are also required to maintain registration of each adopted child with such Russian authorities until the adopted child reaches the age of majority or such other time as may be stipulated by Russian authorities. Maintenance of registration includes, but is not limited, to reporting any change of address of the adopted child.

The undersigned Applicant(s) understand and agree to the foregoing Post Placement/Registration requirements.

ADDENDUM D (8/12/2010)

Risks that Impact the Future Health and Well-Being of an Adoptive Child

Conditions Affecting Children:

Countries that permit international adoption programs as a means of finding families for orphaned or abandoned children often need to rely on international adoption due to lack of financial and economic resources. The same lack of financial and economic resources may impact the social and medical care that prospective adoptive children receive and the availability of medical background information on the children and their birth families. Many children identified for possible adoption are institutionalized in orphanages or hospitals and these facilities are operated below the standards typically provided in western countries. The absence of equipment, supplies, nutritional food, and age appropriate developmental stimulus and the shortage of properly trained medical personnel and child care providers in these institutions can result in a child being at higher risk of illness, delayed physical, psychological, and emotional growth and other impairments. Prospective adoptive parents should be aware that the international adoption process carries an inherent and substantial risk of the existence of medical, social and emotional illnesses, disabilities and deficiencies with children to be adopted. These illnesses, disabilities and deficiencies are widely varied and a complete listing is impossible; however, some common conditions include the following:

Abuse (physical, psychological Emotional & sexual)	Exposure to Nuclear contamination	Respiratory Problems
Adjustment Disorders	Fetal Alcohol Syndrome or Effect	Rickets
Anemia	Hepatitis, A, B & C	Salmonella
Attachment Disorders	HIV/AIDS	Scabies/Lice
Autism	Infectious Diseases	Sensory Integration Problems
Chronic Infections	Intestinal Parasites	Tuberculosis
Complications of Prematurity	Lack of Normal Development	Undiagnosed Genetic Problems
Cytomegalovirus	Lactose Intolerance	Vision/Hearing/Speech Problems
Delayed Development (physical, psychological, emotional)	Learning Disabilities	Undisclosed or Undiagnosed Conditions/Disorders
Dental Problems/Tooth Decay	Malnutrition	Vitamin Deficiency
Depression	Mental Insufficiency
Drug Exposure	Permanent Disabilities
Eating Disorders	Physical Disabilities
Effects of Institutionalization And understimulation	Pneumonia

Conditions Affecting Medical and Social Records:

Prior to adoption, prospective adoptive parents may receive medical and other information regarding a child. All prospective adoptive parents receiving information regarding a child available for international adoption are strongly encouraged to submit that information to an international adoption medical specialist for review and consultation. Nevertheless, the decision to adopt a particular child is made by the person(s) adopting and there can be no guarantee of the absence of any medical or social condition.

While EAC will provide prospective adoptive parents with the information in its physical possession on the mental and developmental condition of any child referred for the purposes of international adoption, EAC can not and does not guarantee the accuracy of such records. If a child is abandoned or orphaned, it may be difficult to determine the child's birthday with complete accuracy and a birth date may later prove to be inaccurate. The medical social and background information on the children available for international adoption is often collected and furnished by independent third parties, including foreign governmental officials, orphanage staff and others who provide this information according to local policy, custom and procedures. Medical and developmental tests administered in foreign countries are unreliable at best and may not correspond to western standards or methods. The medical and/or developmental information provided about any child available for adoption may not provide a complete description of the mental, emotional, physical and/or developmental characteristics of the child.

EAC encourages prospective adoption parents to seek an independent medical evaluation of any child referred for adoption and will provide information about physicians familiar with and specializing in reviewing social and medical reports for international adoption; however, EAC has no affiliation with any such physician and can not and does not make any representation or warranty regarding the services provided by any such physician. Any person adopting a child internationally must accept the risks that all records and information regarding a child available for adoption contain errors or omissions.

BY SIGNING BELOW I/WE ACKNOWLEDGE THAT I/WE HAVE READ AND UNDERSTAND ALL OF THE FOREGOING INFORMATION, WE HAVE MADE OUR OWN DECISION AND ACCEPT THE RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH INTERNATIONAL ADOPTION, WE UNDERSTAND AND ACCEPT THAT I/WE, ANY CHILD ADOPTED BY ME/US AND THE RECORDS CONCERNING ANY CHILD ADOPTED BY ME/US MAY BE SUBJECT TO ANY OF THE FOREGOING CONDITIONS AND UNDERSTAND AND AGREE THAT IN MAKING THE DECISION TO ADOPT ANY CHILD, I/WE WILL CONSIDER ALL OF THE FOREGOING INFORMATION.
